

CCPA READINESS WORKSHOP

By January 1, 2020, the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) requires all companies who use personal data to comply with requests from individuals to report on what data is collected and how it is used, prevent further sharing, or even delete the data upon request.

Data Privacy Compliance

Applicable to every organization that handles personally identifiable information (PII), the CCPA gives consumers broad rights to access and control their personal information. The extent of “do not sell my personal information” and the consumers’ rights to “opt-out” goes above and beyond GDPR compliancy requirements. As currently enacted, the law dramatically increases consumers’ rights of access to and control over how their personal information is collected, used, sold, and disclosed.

Businesses will need to modify operations, policies, and procedures to comply with California residents’ rights to information about and control of their personal information.

Quest’s CCPA Readiness Workshop will:

Give your organization insight into the types of data collected, including personal, sensitive, Right to be Forgotten, and erasure. Quest will also discuss cross-border data transfers and the validity of your current mechanisms for transfers of personal data. Our experts will:

- Review categories of personal information collected and how the information is used.
- Discuss what personal information is collected by your business, how it is used, sold, or shared with third parties, and determine the purpose of such sharing.
- Review internal policies and procedures as to the scope and purpose of such collection of personal information.
- Review your internal and online privacy policies to comply with the CCPA disclosure requirements.
- Discuss known policies and procedures that ensure your organization can respond to customer requests for information related to the sale or disclosure of their personal information as well as requests for access to or deletion of their personal information.
- Discuss technological solutions that can be utilized to process the consumer requests you receive and consumers’ rights to opt-out of the sale of their personal information.

From the CCPA Readiness Workshop, you’ll learn how to prevent the unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, and disclosure of access to personal data and avoid non-compliant CCPA fines.
